(a) – (h) No change.

(i) (1) A Company may withdraw its application for initial listing at any time.

(2) A Company that receives a written determination denying its application for listing must, within four business days, make a public announcement in a press release or other Regulation FD compliant manner about the receipt of the determination and the Rule(s) upon which the determination is based, describing each specific basis and concern identified by Nasdaq in reaching its determination. If the public announcement is not made by the Company within the time allotted or does not include all of the required information, Nasdaq will make a public announcement with the required information and, if the Company appeals the determination as set forth in Rule 5815, the Hearings Panel will consider the Company's failure to make the public announcement in considering whether to list the Company.

2. Procedures of the Self-Regulatory Organization

The proposed rule change was approved by the Board of Directors of the Exchange on October 17, 2014. No other action is necessary for the filing of the rule change.

Questions and comments on the proposed rule change may be directed to Arnold Golub, Vice President, The NASDAQ OMX Group, Inc., at (301) 978-8075.

3. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement of the Purpose of, and Statutory Basis for, the Proposed Rule Change

a. Purpose

Nasdaq processes between 200 and 300 applications each year from companies seeking to list securities on Nasdaq. While most applicants meet the listing requirements, or are prepared to take action to meet those requirements before listing, in some cases a company does not meet the requirements and is not willing, or able, to comply. In other, rare instances, Nasdaq may determine to deny an application based on public interest concerns even though the company meets all initial listing requirements. In either of these cases, the company is informed of the outcome and can withdraw its application before the application is formally denied. If the company does not withdraw the application, the Nasdaq Listing Qualifications Department will issue a written denial, which the company can appeal to a Listing Qualifications Hearings Panel.

3 See Listing Rule 5101 and IM-5101-1.

4 While Nasdaq has always allowed a company to withdraw its application at any time, the proposed rule change will add this to the rules.

5 Listing Rule 5815(a)(1). A Company that has appealed a written denial may also withdraw its application (and appeal) while the appeal is pending.
The procedures for such an appeal are similar to an appeal from a delisting determination. However, while the rules provide transparency to a delisting event by requiring the company to disclose a delisting determination, there is no comparable requirement for disclosure of an initial listing denial.

Just as a delisting determination may be considered a material event to the investing public, Nasdaq believes that a denial of initial listing is equally so, particularly in the context of a company that previously publicly announced its intention to seek a listing, which is often the case. Investors view such an announcement to list as a positive development and such announcements often attract investor interest. Nasdaq believes that the public is therefore equally interested in the outcome of such an application and proposes to adopt a rule that would require a listing applicant that has been denied listing to publicly disclose the receipt of the determination and the circumstances on which the decision was based.\(^6\) Just as is the case with a delisting determination, the proposed rule would require that the disclosure be made within four business days of receipt of Nasdaq’s determination. In cases where the company fails to make the required disclosure, Nasdaq would make the disclosure and a Listing Qualifications Hearings Panel would consider the company’s failure to make the required disclosure when it considers any subsequent appeal of the denial.

\(^6\) The rule would not require disclosure if a company withdraws its listing application before receiving a written determination from Nasdaq. Companies withdraw listing applications for many reasons, including instances where the company is acquired, determines not to list on an exchange, or lists on another venue. In addition, Nasdaq does not believe it can enforce a disclosure requirement after a company has withdrawn from its process. Nonetheless, Nasdaq believes that such disclosure may be appropriate and encourages companies to make such disclosure.
b. Statutory Basis

The Exchange believes that its proposal is consistent with Section 6(b) of the Act\(^7\) in general, and furthers the objectives of Section 6(b)(5) of the Act\(^8\) in particular, in that it is designed to promote just and equitable principles of trade, to remove impediments to and perfect the mechanism of a free and open market and a national market system, and, in general to protect investors and the public interest. The proposed rule change will impose a disclosure requirement on companies that are denied initial listing on Nasdaq, which will help protect investors and the public interest by providing transparency to investors about the status of a company’s application. The proposed rule change will not affect a company’s ability to withdraw its listing application at any time and will add a statement about that ability to Nasdaq’s rules, which will promote just and equitable principles of trade by enhancing transparency and allowing companies to maintain control over the consideration of their applications.

4. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement on Burden on Competition

The Exchange does not believe that the proposed rule change will impose any burden on competition not necessary or appropriate in furtherance of the purposes of the Act. The proposed rule change will impose an additional disclosure requirement on a small universe of companies and is not expected to affect the number of companies applying to list on Nasdaq or any other exchange, or any company’s ability to list.

5. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement on Comments on the Proposed Rule Change Received from Members, Participants, or Others

No written comments were either solicited or received.

The Exchange does not consent to an extension of the time period for Commission action.

The Commission is publishing this notice to solicit comments on the proposed rule change from interested persons.

II. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement of the Purpose of, and Statutory Basis for, the Proposed Rule Change

In its filing with the Commission, the Exchange included statements concerning the purpose of and basis for the proposed rule change and discussed any comments it received on the proposed rule change. The text of these statements may be examined at the places specified in Item IV below. The Exchange has prepared summaries, set forth in sections A, B, and C below, of the most significant aspects of such statements.

A. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement of the Purpose of, and Statutory Basis for, the Proposed Rule Change

1. Purpose

Nasdaq processes between 200 and 300 applications each year from companies seeking to list securities on Nasdaq. While most applicants meet the listing requirements, or are prepared to take action to meet those requirements before listing, in some cases a company does not meet the requirements and is not willing, or able, to comply. In other, rare instances, Nasdaq may determine to deny an application based on public interest concerns even though the company meets all initial listing requirements.\(^3\) In either of these cases, the company is informed of the outcome and can withdraw its application before the application is formally denied.\(^4\) If the company does not withdraw the application, the Nasdaq Listing Qualifications Department will issue a written denial, which the company can appeal to a Listing Qualifications Hearings Panel.\(^5\)

The procedures for such an appeal are similar to an appeal from a delisting determination. However, while the rules provide transparency to a delisting event by requiring the company to disclose a delisting determination, there is no comparable requirement for disclosure of an initial listing denial.

Just as a delisting determination may be considered a material event to the investing public, Nasdaq believes that a denial of initial listing is equally so, particularly in the context of a company that previously publicly announced its intention to seek a listing, which is often the case. In cases where the company fails to make the required disclosure, Nasdaq would make the disclosure and a Listing Qualifications Hearings Panel would consider the company’s failure to make the required disclosure when it considers any subsequent appeal of the denial.

2. \textbf{Statutory Basis}

The Exchange believes that its proposal is consistent with Section 6(b) of the Act\textsuperscript{7} in general, and furthers the objectives of Section 6(b)(5) of the Act\textsuperscript{8} in particular, in that it is designed to promote just and equitable principles of trade, to remove impediments to and perfect the mechanism of a free and open market and a national market system, and, in general to protect investors and the public interest. The proposed rule change will impose a disclosure requirement on companies that are denied initial listing on Nasdaq, which will help protect investors and the public interest by providing transparency to investors about the status of a company’s application. The proposed rule change will not affect a company’s ability to withdraw its listing application at any time and will add a statement about that ability to Nasdaq’s rules, which will promote just and equitable principles of trade by enhancing transparency and allowing companies to maintain control over the consideration of their applications.

B. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement on Burden on Competition

The Exchange does not believe that the proposed rule change will impose any burden on competition not necessary or appropriate in furtherance of the purposes of the Act. The proposed rule change will impose an additional disclosure requirement on a small universe of companies and is not expected to affect the number of companies applying to list on Nasdaq or any other exchange, or any company’s ability to list.

C. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement on Comments on the Proposed Rule Change Received from Members, Participants, or Others

No written comments were either solicited or received.

III. Date of Effectiveness of the Proposed Rule Change and Timing for Commission Action

Within 45 days of the date of publication of this notice in the Federal Register or within such longer period (i) as the Commission may designate up to 90 days of such date if it finds such longer period to be appropriate and publishes its reasons for so finding or (ii) as to which the Exchange consents, the Commission shall: (a) by order approve or disapprove such proposed rule change, or (b) institute proceedings to determine whether the proposed rule change should be disapproved.
